

BLOOMSBURY AUTHOR ORDERS

One of the perks of publishing with Bloomsbury is our author discount clause. On the pages below, you will find information about ordering books at your discount, depending on your region.

EVENTS AND LAUNCHES

Author events and book launches can be an exciting way to celebrate your work and share your achievement with colleagues, friends and readers. Please use the information on these pages to order books for your event. We are happy to answer your questions about planning your own event, and we will promote your event on our social media sites, but unfortunately we cannot set up events for you and cannot monetarily support them.

Some tips on setting up your event or launch:

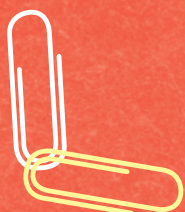

1. Talk to your marketer about your plans, including when you would like the event to take place. We recommend hosting the event at least 2 weeks after the announced pub date – delays can happen, and you don't want to have an event before books are available!
2. Talk to your local bookstore about their events policy. If you are based at an institution, talk to your department chair or administrator about what options are available.
3. If you have a confirmed event at a bookstore, they can order books directly from Bloomsbury, or via their usual channels.
4. If you are ordering books, please place your order 6 weeks before your planned event to ensure timely delivery.

Please note:

If you wish to place an order and think you may wish to return some of the stock at a later date (for example, for an event), please contact us before you submit the order, as there may be returns restrictions we would need to clarify before you commit. In all circumstances, the costs of returning any books are to be paid by you.

Your author web code is for personal use, and not to be shared. All orders are checked to confirm author status and may be declined.
